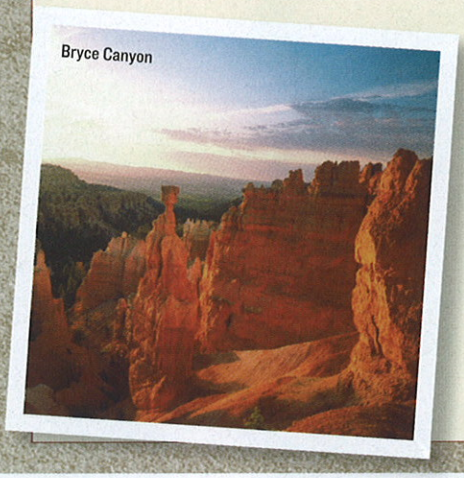
Unique UTAH

Utah's state motto – "Industry" – and its nickname of "The Beehive State" honor the hard work and determination of those early settlers who made the dangerous journey west and carved a new life out of the rugged yet beautiful Utah landscape.



Bryce Canyon

From the iconic buttes of Monument Valley to the natural sandstone formations of Arches National Park, Utah's strikingly beautiful landscape has been immortalized in countless films, epitomizing the grandeur of the American West. The state's sophisticated cities, world-class winter resorts and national parks offer travelers from around the world a wide variety of cultural, recreational and outdoor activities.

Experience the thrill of a whitewater rafting trip through Canyonlands National Park. Visit Moab, then go camping in The Devil's Garden at Arches National Park. Go bird watching among the wildflower-filled canyons of Zion National Park. Or simply watch the sun set over the pink cliffs and red rock "hoodoos" of spectacular Bryce Canyon National Park.

For winter sports enthusiasts, Utah is the place to take a figure-skating class at the Utah Olympic Oval, go snow tubing at Soldier Hollow, ice fish in Scofield State Park or enjoy snowmobiling on some of the state's 800 miles of groomed snowmobile trails.

Be sure to leave time to enjoy the fine dining, arts and cultural offerings of Salt Lake City, Utah's state capital and world headquarters to the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints.
